The screenshot shows the homepage of the Dream Home real estate search application. At the top, there is a large banner featuring a photograph of a two-story house with a wrap-around porch. Overlaid on the banner is the text "Find Your Dream Home" in large white letters, followed by "Search properties for sale and to rent in the UK". Below the banner is a search bar with dropdown menus for "For Sale" and "London, Manchester or Oxford only", and a green "Search" button. To the right of the search bar are two small circular icons: one with a heart and another with a person. On the left side of the page, there is a section titled "Featured Properties For Sale" with four property cards. Each card includes a thumbnail image, the price, the property type, a brief description, and the location. For example, the first property is a "1 bed flat for sale" in Manchester for £150K. On the right side of the page, there is a "Show on Map" button.

Big tech firms recklessly pursuing profits from AI, says UN head

Big technology companies are recklessly pursuing profits from artificial intelligence and urgent action is needed to mitigate the risks from the rapidly growing sector, the head of the United Nations has warned.

In a fierce attack on the technology multinationals, the UN secretary general, António Guterres, told the World Economic Forum meeting in Davos that every breakthrough in generative AI increased the threat of unintended consequences.

Guterres linked the risks from AI to that posed by the climate crisis and said the international community had no strategy to deal with either.
